

Dream Weavers

An Occupational Therapy Collective

Who are we?

Dream Weavers is a collective co-run by Amanda Landry & Mira Etlin-Stein – both occupational therapists who work to break down barriers & promote inclusive communities where everyone belongs!

At Dream Weavers, we believe in dreaming, connections, and inclusion for all community members.

We are two motivated, passionate, & creative occupational therapists based in downtown Toronto at the Centre for Social Innovation.

We focus on building independent living skills, community engagement, employment skills, social skills & connection.

In addition to our popular group programs, we offer individual 1:1 sessions for teens & young adults on the Autism Spectrum & with Developmental Differences.

Individual Occupational Therapy (1:1 Sessions)

Mira and Amanda are available to work on individualized goals in the areas of independent living & employment. 1:1 services offer young adults the opportunity to form a partnership with their therapist & work towards achieving meaningful personalized goals in the areas of independent living, life skills & employment skills. Common goals: developing employment skills such as resume writing, interview skills, time management & job searching; or working toward independent living by developing social skills & learning about budgeting, cooking, sexuality & relationships, & more!

Mira and Amanda are both registered Occupational Therapists who founded Dream Weavers in 2012. They work with teens & young adults with developmental differences building life & employment skills.
